

ACOME Group strengthens its international ambition and unifies its expertise

A stronger organisation and a unified identity to enhance the visibility of its expertise serving critical infrastructure markets.

ACOME Group is continuing its transformation to address the growing challenges facing critical infrastructure and to strengthen its ability to support customers in a world shaped by digital, energy and industrial transitions.

The Group designs, manufactures and develops cables, connectivity solutions and microduct systems for critical infrastructure. Operating across several continents, ACOME Group now covers the entire value chain, from components to fully integrated solutions, serving the telecommunications, data centre, building, transportation, energy, defense and automotive markets.

This strengthened organisation is now structured around four global Business Units: Digital Infrastructure Solutions, Datacom Networks Solutions, Transport, Energy & Defense Solutions, and Global Automotive Solutions. This organisation enables the Group to leverage its expertise more effectively, foster synergies across its activities and deliver solutions that are ever more closely aligned with customer needs.

As part of this evolution, the expertise historically developed by ACOME SA, Idea Optical and LYNDDAHL Telecom is being progressively brought together under a single identity: ACOME Group. This alignment is designed to provide greater clarity around the Group's offering, better showcase the complementarity of its capabilities and increase the visibility of its international presence.

For customers and partners, this new identity brings greater clarity, simplicity and consistency. It brings together complementary areas of expertise under one shared identity while maintaining the industrial excellence, close customer relationships and service quality that define ACOME Group.

« This evolution reflects who we are today: an industrial group that has grown, strengthened its expertise and expanded its international footprint. By reinforcing the ACOME Group identity, we are giving greater visibility to the complementarity of our capabilities and to our ability to support customers on increasingly strategic and demanding projects. »

Frédéric Briand, Chief Executive Officer

« Our customers are facing increasingly complex and international projects. By bringing our expertise together under a single identity, we provide them with a clearer understanding of our offering and easier access to the full breadth of ACOME Group's capabilities ».

Stéphane Samson, Deputy Chief Executive Officer

This new milestone supports the ambition of the Connect to 2030 by ACOME Group strategic plan: to build a more visible, agile and high-performing group capable of supporting the long-term transformation of its markets and customers.
